Success Story

A client was referred to our program last October. Many of our AB 109 clientele arrive without a clear direction for their lives. However, this new arrival was different because he showed up with an agenda and goals he desired to accomplish. Upon arrival at our house, this client immediately felt at home and relieved, as could be seen from his demeanor. We utilized the blackout period, all new arrivals go through, to conduct weekly appointments and get all their right-to-work paperwork in order. Within a week, this person accepted a “get well” job. This wasn’t our client’s dream job, but he nonetheless took the opportunity in stride and was conscientious in performing required duties. This client proceeded to use his first paycheck to make payments toward restitution fines and overdue child support. All these little successes boosted the client’s self-esteem and pride. A few months later, he came into our office and asked for a favor. The client needed a written character reference from us because he was actively being considered for a promotion and full-time employment. We agreed and furnished a character reference letter. Our client nailed the interview and became proud of his job and work. This client’s attitude and work ethic has proven contagious to the other clientele we serve. For example, based on this client’s efforts and successes, it has helped lead other in-house clients get jobs with the same company. Recently, this client asked for an extension as he wasn’t ready to leave the program. He wanted an opportunity to save a little more money to secure housing before leaving the program. Our staff agreed to the extension, and we are proud to note that this client is currently on track to soon move into a place of his own. Our client completed intensive outpatient services with us while in our sober living environment and said the most helpful thing he learned from that experience, was that an honest and simple life is a good life. Since arriving into our care, he is on track for a better life than what he had before entering.
